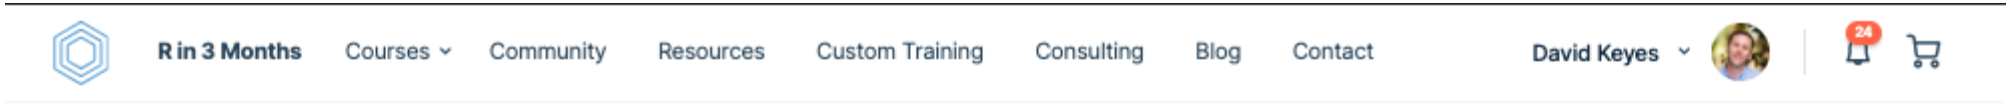
Code of Conduct



Code of Conduct

I have developed this code of conduct (adapted from the original version here) in order to create a safe and welcoming environment for all R learners. I have done this for two reasons:

1. A large part of my mission with R for the Rest of Us is to bring R to those who have not yet been exposed to it, including those of diverse backgrounds. Creating an environment where all feel welcome is essential to this.
2. Learning to code is challenging. Being able to openly share code with others without fear of demeaning responses is key to making progress.

With this in mind, all R for the Rest of Us participants are required to agree with the following code of conduct. I expect cooperation from all participants to help ensure a safe environment for everybody.

Need Help? Please email me at david@rfortherestofus.com.

I am dedicated to providing a harassment-free experience for everyone, regardless of gender, gender identity and expression, age, sexual orientation, disability, physical appearance, body size, race, ethnicity, religion (or lack thereof), or technology choices. I do not tolerate harassment of other students in any form. Sexual language and imagery is not appropriate. Participants violating these rules may be sanctioned or expelled from the group and/or workshops they are signed up for without a refund.

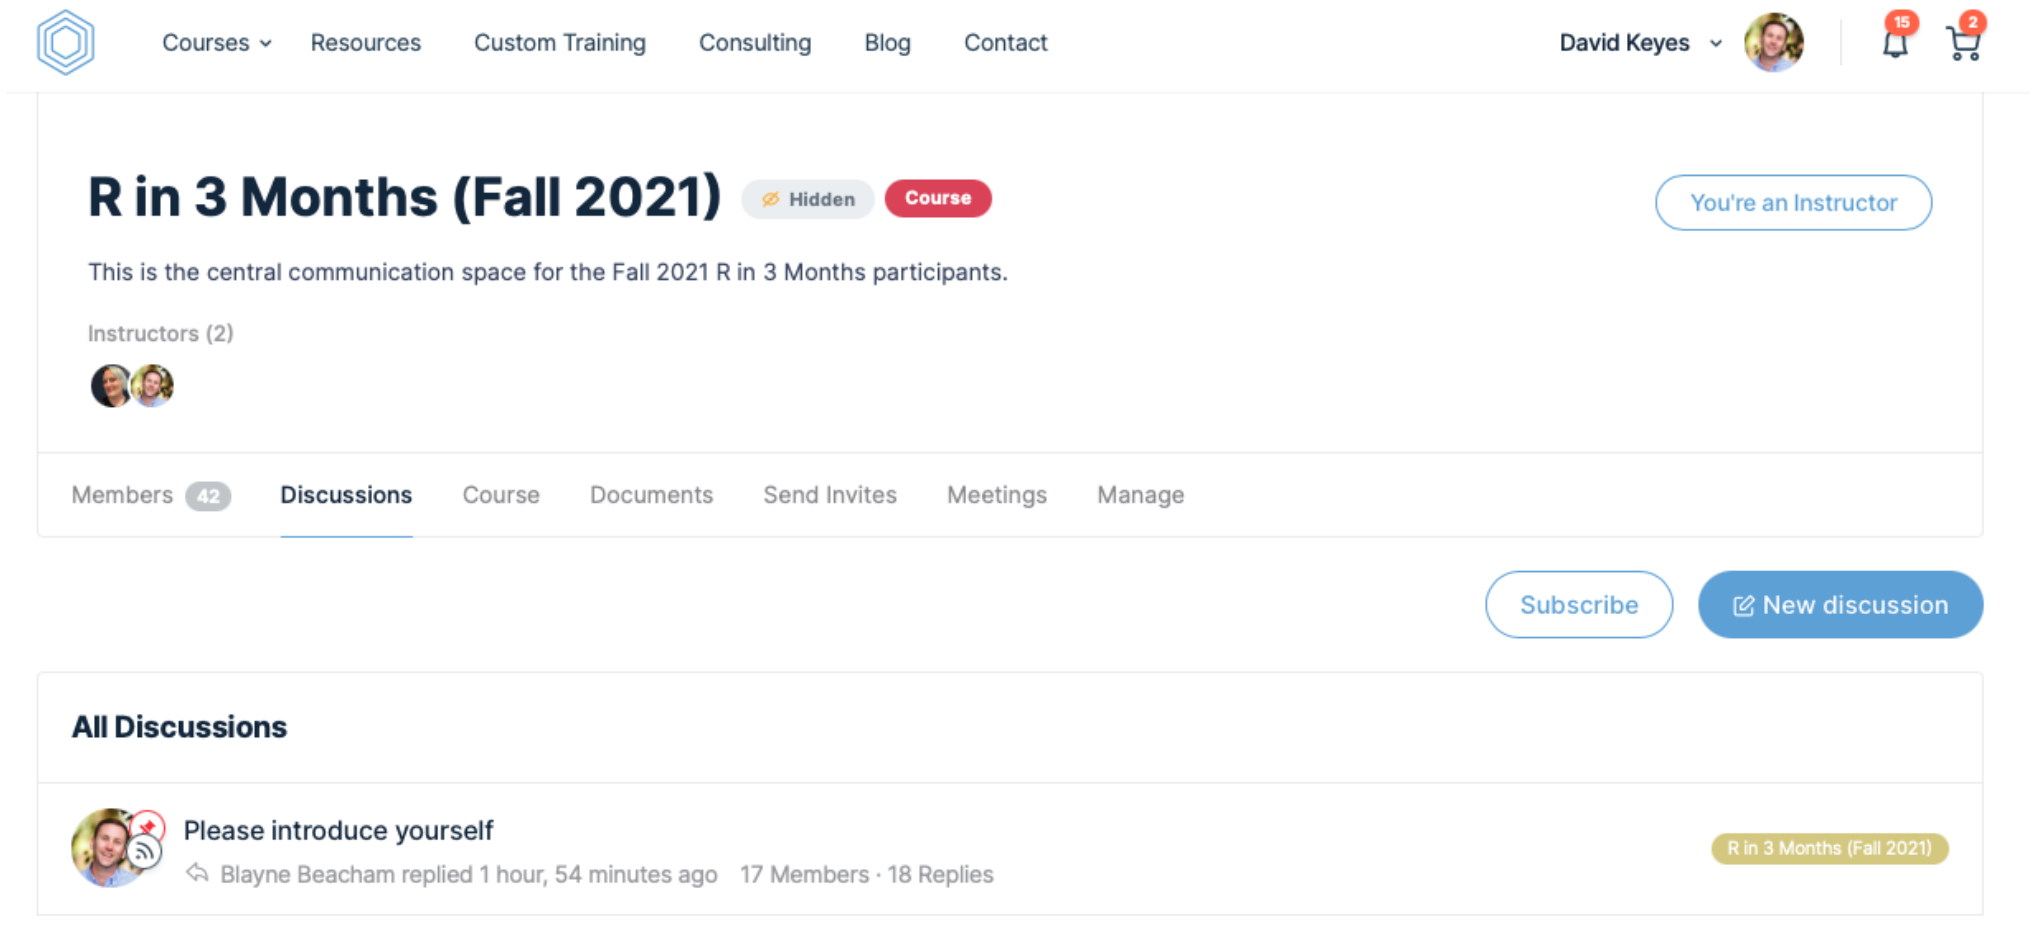
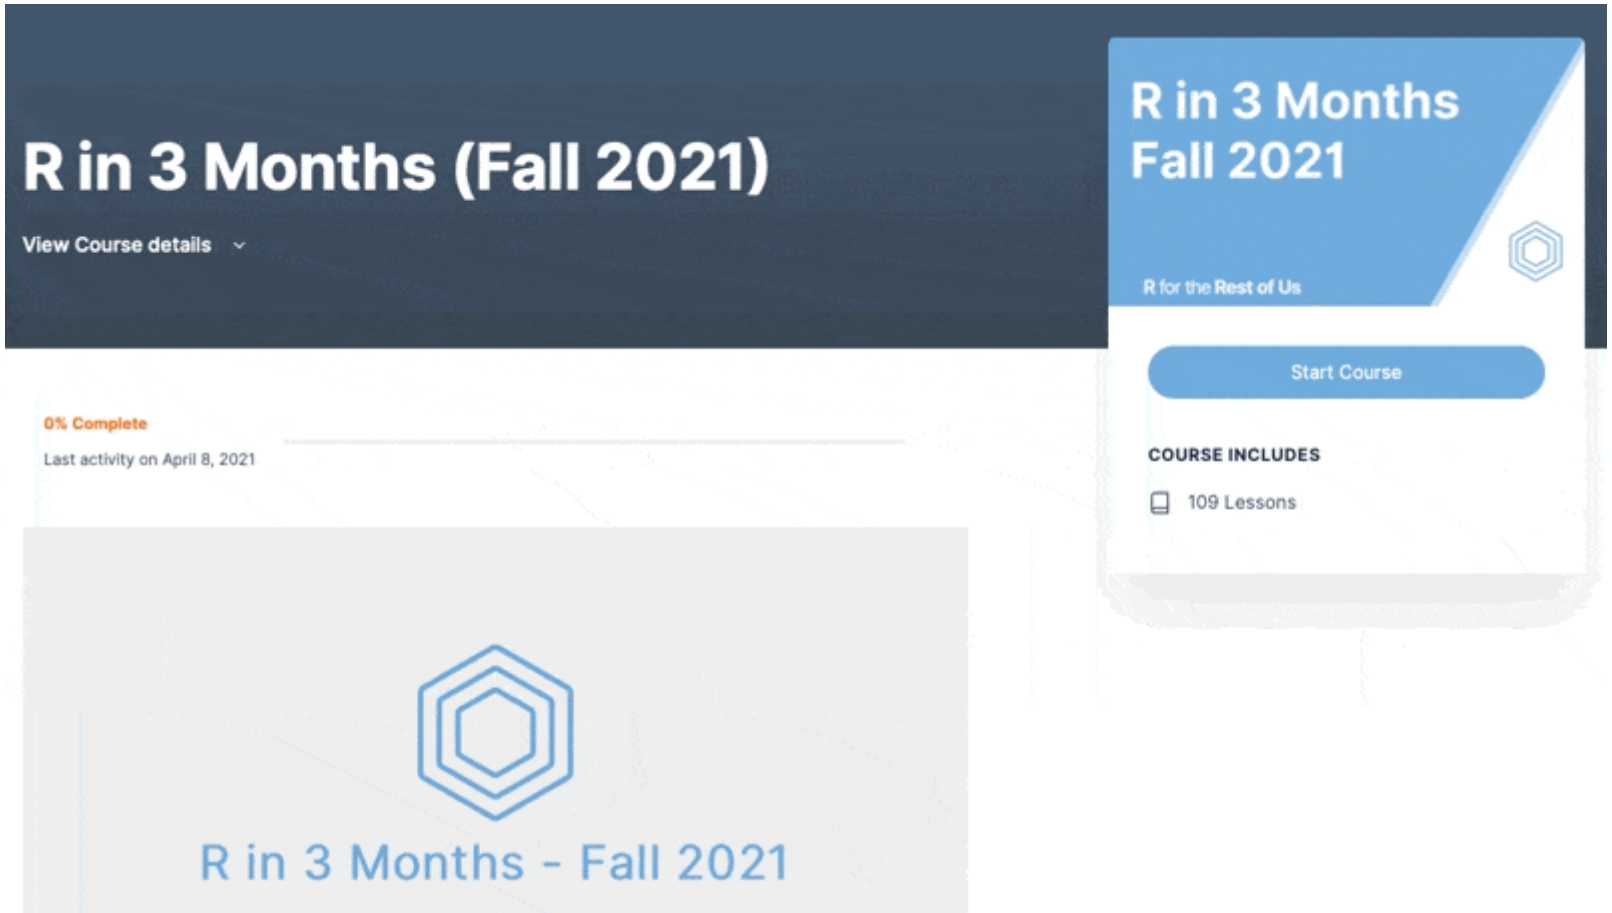
R in 3 Months Group



Course Materials



Project Assignments

- Something you will work on throughout the term
- Can be something you're working on now or something you've done before
- Ideally with data you are ok to share publicly
- Best if you have some "final report" you can work toward at the end of our 3 months together
- If no ideas, use Tidy Tuesday data
- You'll share progress most weeks and get feedback videos from Charlie or me
